MEMPHIS, TENN., SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1880.

WILLIAM R. MOORE

Accepts the Nomination from the Republican Party and Will Make the Canyass for Congress Against Casey a Republican.

The following correspondence sufficiently explains itself and needs no introduction:

MEMPHIS, TENN., September 25, 1880. DEAR SIR-It was made our pleasant duty by the Republican congressional convention for this, the tenth district of Tennessee, held at Lagrange on the twentieth instant, to inform you, that having on the fifth ballot re-at Lagrange on the twentieth instant, to inform you, that having on the fifth ballot received forty-four votes out of a possible total of sixty-five, you were nominated as the Republican candidate to represent this district in congress, and that your nomination, as such, was formally announced by the chairman of that convention. We recognize in you a Republican, who has been for the last twenty years, in the darkest and most trying days, as well as the bright and prosperous, faithful to its patriotic and beneficent principles and policies. For them you have had the "smallpox" flag hung out over your door by Democratic editors, and for them have suffered heavy losses. As a business man, we know that your candidacy requires a sacrifice, but we feel assured that now, as in the past, you will obey the call of your party to carry its banner in this campaigu, whatever the bitterness and proscription of its enemies. We rejoice that the Republicans of this district have given the business people of the district the rare opportunity of voting for a business man, and we can assure you of the cordial support of not only every true Republican, but of many who rightly look to all able, experienced and enterprising business men to wisely solve the economical and financial questions of this grand era of industrial prosperity. We are, sir, with assurance of your high esteem and confident hope of your election, your obedient servants,

J. F. NORRIS.

To Mesers. J. F. Norris, Carter Harris and L. B. Eaton. committee:
GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of yours of this date, informing me that the Republican congressional convention for this, the tenth district of Tennessee, held at Lagrange on the twentieth instant, gave me on the fifth ballot forty-four votes out of a possible total of sixty-five, and that my nomination as the Republican candidate for congress from this district was then formally announced by the chairman of that convention. For the distinguished honor of receiving such nomination from a district representing the greatest commercial importance of any within the limits of Tennessee, I beg to express my warmest acknowledgements. For the many kind words also, with which you are pleased to couple my name therewith, please accept my thanks. I have, after mature deliberation and much hesitation, accepted the nomination, only on condition that my Republican and business friends must not expect from me a regular and complete canvass of the district, a task which, however pleasant under other circumstances, will be now utterly impracticable on account of business engagements made previous to this late and unexpected development. My Republicanism is so well known throughout this district that I deem it unnecessary to make any pledge or promises. To Messrs. J. F. Norris, Carter Harris and L. B. known throughout this district that I deem it unnecessary to make any pledge or promises. Let it suffice to say that, if elected, I shall do whatever seems to me to be best for the sts of the constituency and county that e. I shall aim to carry into the canvas and to congress the same honorable conduct that I have always endeavored to earry into a'll my personal business affairs. Very MEMPHES, S. Otember 25, 1880.

OBITUARY.

Dr. George Frederic Stewart. At 1 o'clock on the morning of the 2d of Septem ber, 1880, the "Great Reaper" silently entered our love and tenderness a favorite child usually re ceives from doting parents. God only knows the suffering of his sunt-mother, under this heavy blow! After graduating he located at Wythe, where he continued to practice until his death. No mortal can estimate the loss sustained by our community, for it can be truthfully said Dr. Stewart wa no ordinary man. Sprung from a cultured and high-toned stock of people, on "both sides of the use," he was indeed one of nature's nobler As to his professional status, although so young, be stood in the front ranks of medical men. Graduating before twenty-one, he bore away the highest honors of his class, and deeply devoted to his profession, enlisted every energy, determined to sur-mount every obstable, and conquer every difficulty in his pathway to the honorable position of a firstclass physician; how far he succeeded was attested by his large practice and wonderful success in curout fear. Also a complete line of misses', boys' and children's shoes. Men's calf and class physician; how far he succeeded was attested by his large practice and wonderful success in curing disease in its most malignant and stubborn form. Especially was he successful in treating the very malady, that proved fatal to himself—hermaturia. His professional acumen was attended by a high order of social endowments that insured him a warm place in the hearts of his patrons. It was a remarkable fact, that in every new acquaintance he found a friend. Indeed, it could not have been otherwise, when his was a heart brim full of the "milk of human kindness." Da. Stravarr was a man that loved his fellowman. It is related of him that when but a mere lad, he would read the bible to the family negroes at every opportunity, and so great was his regard for them that when he would go the safe for cold biscuit, he invariably procured some for his little colored coincades. Not only did he read the bible to the negroes, but he had a Sabbath-school on a little creek island in the woods, where every Sabbath during the summer he would instruct the poor white children of his neighbors. Their rude seats made of poles, it was said, presented quite a romantic appearance. No better evidence of his characteristic benevolence than the deep wall of sorrow that went up from the colored people at his death. They claimed him as the black man's friend." No matter when or at what hour of the night he was called, he went. No questions as to their ability to pay, or whether they would ever pay. When they came for medicine, it too poor to buy, he freely gave it them. If it be true that "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord," truly a goodly sum is set down to his credit. During the prevalence of yellow-fever in 1878, he proved himself a valiant hero. Without the hope of pay he visited the sick, helped bury the dead, gave or read to the needy, and scarcely took rest enough to preserve health. He leaves a lovely wife and interesting 2babe. May God in His infinite merry extend over them the sheltering wing of His love. May they e whose sole mission in life seems to be "to destroy much good," is a mystery we cannot solve. It is a mystery now—sometime we will know, when we "shall see, eye to eye." The dector was a member of the Baptist church, and for a long time super-intendent of a un'on Sabbath school at Wythe. The writer of this sketch would not be understood as claiming that Dn. Strewarr was faultiess, a perfect man, for he was human. But, surely, in the presence of so many virtues, in this, the sad hour of our bereavement, we will be allowed to cast the blessed mantle of charity over his weaknesses, in paying a justificial to the memory of one, who, perhaps, had as few prominent faults as any other man of his age. We loved him and will miss him. He is gone, and we mourn him as one whose place cannot be easily filled.

"Ah, herce spirit of glass and scythe, What power can stay thee in thy silent course Or melt thine fron heart with pity." ATTENTION, KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.
